Food in Schools – Who is Paying and How Much?

Schools, especially between deciles one and five, have been providing breakfasts and lunches to children in need for a long time. Some schools are fully sponsored to do this and others are using their own fundraising efforts or ops grants to feed hungry children.

What is not well known is the exact cost to schools of feeding hungry children. We want to better understand this issue and have more accurate information with which to advocate for better support for hungry children in your schools.

To help us, please click here to complete a very brief survey to give us this critical information.

Thanks so much for your support.
